1. INTRODUCTION

Since our childhood we have surfed many websites, where each website provides its user with some sort of important information they require. In our era number of internet users have exponentially increased so does their demands, requirements and stipulations. The main objective of software engineer is to provide users with intuitive, interactive and beneficial products. Considering huge increase in property related activities in Pakistan, we decided to develop a real estate website named Apnaghar.com. This website will be interactive and easy to use so that people of any age can effectively use it. It will provide user with necessary information about the property they are interested to buy such as property's price, area and location. People can search properties in many cities e.g. Lahore, Islamabad, Karachi, Peshawar and many more.
